

God Can Only Love and Grieve

BMI: 79740830

Key: Bm
Normal Capo: 7
Composer(s): David Graybeard
Using Capo?: Yes

Em E9sus D C
Its raining out tonight, and a thousand candle lights
Em G Em
Are reflected in the droplets on my window
Em E9sus D C
And every drop contains the light and dark refrains
Em G Em
That answer in my soul and wake my mind's eye

each line contains two low string walkdowns

Em C D C D
And that joyful melancholy feeling seeps into my heart
Em C D C G
I know you and I am you but we still are kept apart

I go outside to feel again, your caress of rain and wind
My stride extends the reaches of my vision
In the womb that contains searing joy and ageless pain,
I'm the tautness in the links between the ages

And that joyful melancholy feeling seeps into the Earth
I'm shaking and I'm reeling in the throws of our rebirth

At home again for now, the embrace of I-and-Thou
But soon my sojourn will start over
Look out once more and love and grieve, give me strength before you leave
Fill me with the power of your sorrow

And that joyful melancholy feeling seeps into your heart
You know me and you are but we still are kept apart

Until our time again appears, I'll cry a stranger's tears
And look for your face within my dreamworld
"Innocence, or die!" will be my battlecry
As I venture back into this strange world

And that joyful melancholy feeling seeps into our hearts
We know it and we are it, but we still are kept apart

My god, why are we forsaken -- the gift given, so quickly taken
Please don't forget my face while you are sleeping!

